

29 Questions for the Ordinary Life

by Norm Bouchard • www.NormBouchard.com

Why is it so hard to forgive? What would I do today if I were brave? Why do we argue with reality? How would I behave in life if no one was looking? Exploring provocative personal questions can bring deeper awareness and increase the potential to release worry, fear, sadness and unbeneficial judgments.

Norm Bouchard is a sought after international speaker and counselor. His benevolent approach to life inspires people to closely examine their assumptions and transform their perceptions. His open honesty about himself draws people into exploring themselves to gain new awareness of who they are and what they are meant to be. A former Catholic priest, Bouchard was marketing director for Certified Senior Professionals and is now marketing director of Mile Hi Church of Religious Science. He kept asking himself, "Is your brand of God always right?" This led to development of 28 more questions with a group of associates and friends that became a book and will be explored in a workshop in 2010. "I enjoy supporting people to explore how profound their lives really are," he said. "The process can lead to greater happiness."

—Carole Lomond